Albay, Makati,

UN's 'best' in PH

By Jerry E. Espinosa

WHEN disaster strikes, they react.

Three Philippine local governments (LGUs)—Albay province, Makati City and San Francisco Bay in California (U.S.)—were one of the United Nations Office for Disaster Risk Reduction's (UNISDR) list of 29 model communities worldwide that are "exemplars in disaster risk management and reduction."

These LGUs have been noted for their "best practices" on a wide range of challenges, including flood management, early warning mechanisms, reconstruction and legislation.

Also on the list are Mexico, Italy; Bonn, Germany; Austria's Tyrol province; Mumbai, India; Bangkok, Thailand; Cape Town, South Africa; Rome, Italy; Argentina; Buenos Aires, El Salvador; Cairns, Australia; North Vancouver, Canada; Nashville, Tenn.; and San Francisco, California, among other places.

In its "Making Cities Resilient" report, the Geneva-based agency also cited the Philippines for the 2010 passage of the National Disaster Risk Reduction Act, which is described as a "proactive approach to disaster risk governance."

The act obliges LGUs to earmark 5 percent of their total revenues to disaster risk reduction. Local governments may also use 20 percent of their Internal Revenue Allotment from the

Morato says accusers used intel funds, too

By Jerry E. Espinosa

TOP OFFICIALS of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office (PCSO) used nearly P40 million in "leftovers" from the controversial P325 million in the agency's intelligence funds when they took over in mid-2010, according to former PCSO director Manuel L. Morato.

Morato, one of 30 former government officials, including former President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, accused of plunder involving PCSO funds, is confined in a suite at St. Luke's Medical Center in Quezon City, under the custody of the National Bureau of Investigation.

"The fact remains I was only a PCSO director under then President [Arroyo] as I had nothing to do with the intelligence funds," Morato said. "Under the law, only the chairman and general manager have access to [those funds]."

Raul Lantia, NBI deputy director for intelligence, said Morato, 70, surrendered to the agency at around 31 p.m. on Friday.

NBI agent Irvin Garcia told the Inquirer that someone from Morato's camp called the agency to say that Morato wanted to surrender.

NBI agents went to the hospital and served on Morato the warrant of arrest that the grand court Sandiganbayan issued on Wednesday.

Leni can win any post if she runs now; but will the legend wane?

By Gemma Luz Corrales Contributor

Just a hypothesis:

AFTER making the decision to run for Congress, Leni Robredo, a widow at 47, now stands in the camp of history wondering if she can indeed even join the world her husband had inhabited.

But the wearing of the belt to Jose Rodriguez's legacy had not been in many that he been the strategic political animal driven by greed for power and glory, she might have witnessed the world follow her husband's steps into politics very early in August.

It would have been perfect timing, with her riding on the crest of the nation's grief over her husband's untimely death, and propelled further by several nationwide movements that hoped to keep alive the Rodriguez legacy of servant leadership, transparency and accountability she could only win a run for any office by a landslide.

Lawyer Manuel Torres, president of Juan Rodriguez-Lives, one of several movements organized to perpetuate the legacy of the late interior secretary, "Maga Maria" (48,300 votes) will support her and so will the enlightening, exemplar lives."

"[Leni] wants it, she should run now while the broads' philanthropies are still strong." Also Robles, political analyst and correspondent for the South China Morning Post, said in the time, "She can't wait until the next election because [the phenomenon] will fade. It always does. Who remembers Juan Aquino and Erila Justice now? Even Nino Aquino is fast losing his luster," he added.

After her husband's death, Leni Robredo has become widely seen as the strongest candidate to run for the presidency. She is the widow of the late President Benigno Aquino III, who was assassinated in 2011. She is also the daughter of the late President Ferdinand Marcos Jr. and the widow of the late President Benigno Aquino III.

Tamaraw multiply in the wild

Fertilizer scam case dawdles in Sandigan

By Lawrence de Guzman

FORMER President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo has been around twice for the last two of the many charges that the Aquino administration has been demanding to bring against her for alleged financial impropriety in her one-year presidency.

One of the most vexatious of those, the alleged diversion of P728 million in fertilizer funds to help Arroyo's presidential campaign in 2004, appears to be bogged down in the Sandiganbayan court case.

Commotion erupts as man grapples for son's COC

By Marion R. Burgos Jr.
Inquirer Staff

LOILO CITY—A commotion erupted at the Commission on Elections (Comelec) office in Panay when a family of a candidate tried to prevent the filing of his candidacy for mayor.

Police detained several Cantorio, 40, after he tried to snatch the certificate of candidacy (COC) of his son, Michael, from Comelec personnel just 5:15 a.m., triggering the commotion.

Two COCs, including that of Michael, were taken from the grappled-for possession of his documents from municipal election officer Evelyn Manzano and Panay police chief Jesus Ro-que from Davao Region.

"The man in front of me when he suddenly grabbed the documents said we had to cancel him," Davao Region told the Inquirer.

Michael, 35, a commercial employee of the municipal government, is a member of his third cousin and municipal Councilor Michael Gonzales, whom running for mayor under the ruling Liberal Party.

Councilor Gonzales, 38, son of retired Justice Felix Salas, is running for mayor of Davao Region, while his brother, Mayor Michael Gonzales, is running against Governor-elect of the United Nationalist Alliance.

Mayor Manzano said the filing of COC of his son's name was not a political move but a move to challenge his son's candidacy.

"We do not have to be a gesture to see why this happened and who is behind it," the mayor said.

Gonzales, employed as a driver of the municipal government, was taken to the Davao Regional Jail after he filed his COC following the commotion, according to Davao Region.

On Oct. 2, Gonzales filed a report to the Panay police station in his son and his family could not be located.

Mayor Michael Gonzales, provincial election supervisor, said he had asked the municipal Councilor office to submit a request and get out of the province filing of charges against Gonzales for criminal and cleared office.

K9 reaction prompts seizure of detonating cord

SUMAGUITE CITY—The Coast Guard here intercepted on Thursday 300 kilograms of detonating cord that could be used for underwater blasting or for explosive devices. The red detonating cord was found by the Coast

Guard's bomb-sniffing dog inside an empty oil tank with strong seawater inside it, and labeled as "mystery."

"The dog was barking around the tank, which was monitored in the area. One personnel then climbed the

Sara Duterte defies dad, drops out

Tough-talking leader's child turns back on polls

DAVAO CITY—Mayor Sara Duterte has defied her father's wishes and withdrawal from the race by congressional against a key Duterte political rival to a move that is raising more questions than answers here.

The tipping scale was seen to fall in favor of the incumbent mayor of the first district, Raulo Magpale, following that decision not to file his certificate of candidacy (COC) for representative in violation of an apparent deal with her father, Rodrigo Duterte, who is running for mayor of the city again.

Rodriguez, incumbent vice mayor, is running for mayor against four opponents who are not known. He is replacing the old post after terms have forced him to let go of the mayoral position and sit as vice mayor of his daughter while waiting for the opening to run for mayor again.

Rodriguez had wanted to run in 2010 against Duterte, incumbent congressman and son of Mayor Benigno Aquino III, but latter rejected the offer, saying he was a vice mayor in Davao City.

The Magpale family has been able to keep the first district seat in the last 30 years by strategically backing Duterte and others who were known to run with them.

Instead of backing her father's wish, Sara Duterte chose to run in another election post. She issued a statement in the after noon of the last day of filing COCs, saying she was not running for reelection to allow her father to reclaim his old post. Duterte is also running for congress as her father had wanted.

Sara's decision threw the local party that her father founded and heads, PDP-Laban, into a frenzy as it searched for a replacement that could step into the shoes of Luis Rodriguez, former vice mayor, who even party officials said is a lightweight if placed against the stronger Magpale.

Rodriguez had been told about working on upon the release of the support of the Duterte.

"The first district house seat is considered key for Duterte's local party because having a Duterte occupy it would complete the family's political dominance of the city. The Magpale said he had the plan to run in 2010, but he was told to wait until the Duterte's side came out of the city."

Should a Duterte succeed in winning the position away from the Magpales, it could signal the decline of the Duterte's influence in the city and the further strengthening of the Magpale's grip.

The plan had failed, however, after Duterte refused to go along with it.

"Up to the last moment, I was waiting for her to change her mind and finally run for congress," said Paolo Duterte, Sara's brother and head of the Association of Barangay Captains in the city.

Duterte is running for vice mayor in his father's congressional race. Rodriguez is now running for a seventh term in mayor in a previous term. He was elected 10 years ago. He held the vice mayor of his daughter, Ferdinand Magpale, in 2010, but he was not elected in 2013.

Quezon bans charcoal production using wood products

By Delfino T. Sualha Jr.

LEGUNA CITY—Charcoal production using wood products is now banned in Quezon province, the ban's proponents believe mangrove depletion is an increase in demand for charcoal, particularly by stores in Metro Manila selling roasted pigs.

Exempted from the ban are charcoal made from coconut shells.

Sen. Royce, provincial board member, said the ban is a ban of the use of wood in charcoal production and natural resources, incorporated the ban in an environmental code that is passed recently.

Royce said proponents of the law noticed that demand for wood charcoal, especially those from mangroves, is growing as a result of increased demand in Metro Manila and other parts of the country preferring to use wood charcoal.

The high demand for wood charcoal, Royce said, had led to

Fr. Peter Manalili, chair of

Clark as PH's premier airport not even planned, says P-Noy

CITY OF SAN FERNANDO—President Aquino said the local government has no plan yet to make Clark International Airport (ICAI) in Pampanga the country's new international airport due to the existence of a high-speed train connecting Clark International Airport to Manila.

Slum dwellers gain land in QC auction

Parish-based cooperative scores rare victory for urban poor

By DE Yap

MUTED THUNDER filled the room when Item No. 95 was announced at the auction of two defuncted properties in Quezon City on Thursday last week. Up for bidding was a parcel of land in Barangay Pampal.

Unknown to most, a group of informal settlers backed by a parish-based cooperative were awaiting the results with bated breath, pinning its hopes on the 1,200-sq-meter lot.

Don't get it wrong, if all came down to these children—drives leading to a makeshift building, public—and the buyers—who needed it.

"Good, good to hold No. 247," the auctioneer declared in the small crowd back into the place.

For the leaders of Sta. Maria Della Beata Cooperative (SMBC), the No. 4 auction marked the first crucial step in their mission to secure land in this area for the poor.

It was a triumph of a rare sort for the SMBC, the only poor, who often have to beg for their own.

The cooperative along with its partners, the Pampal Dignity in Partnership (PDIP) Movement, announced, was the right to the lot which was part of a 3.5-hectare property in Barangay 2, a compound that has been occupied by hundreds of informal settlers for over half a century.

SENIOR Iranian clerics intensified their anti-Western criticism on Friday, calling the near-collapse of the national currency this week a consequence of a US-led conspiracy to wage an economic war on Iran, and predicting that the pressure would ease.

The message, highlighted in the main weekly sermon at Friday prayers, appeared to be an effort to show a unified and defiant response to the crisis over the currency, the rial, which has roughly halved its value against the dollar in a tempest of killing to black-market money exchangers by leaders worried about their country's economic stability.

A identical plea on Tuesday by President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad to stop the selling seemed only to heighten the anxiety, and a crackdown by the police against the currency traders and the arrest of suspected speculators on Wednesday resulted in a large protest in Tehran that included burning in the publicly powerful Grand Bazaar.

That was the first significant demonstration of anger over the devalued rial, which has led to a loss of confidence in the daily lives of Iranians by worsening the already high inflation rate. Many Iranians said outside currency exchange have attributed the problem to what they call Ahmadinejad's mismanagement as well as the countering efforts of the Western nations imposed on Iran over its disputed nuclear energy program.

None of the statements about the crisis in the official Iranian news media Friday offered a hint of any new substance in the crisis or suggested that the government was willing to compromise on the nuclear program in exchange for reduced sanctions. Instead they renewed threats to show defiance and uphold the legacy of resistance of other men, like the eight-year war with Iraq in the 1980s.

"The pressure today imposed on us by the world alongside a full-fledged economic war," Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, a top cleric and the Friday prayer leader, said in his message, carried on official news outlets. "This pressure will not last. Our people have been trained and they will not be men down."

The Iran News Agency quoted a close aide of the supreme leader, Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, as saying that Iran's economy never collapsed if they believed the sanctions would have been to regulate in the days over the nuclear program, which Iran has said is for peaceful energy use. He said the power, however, is in developing the ability to make nuclear weapons.

"It is not surprising the psychological war and conspiracy that the enemy has brought in the currency and gold market and this war is extremely threatening," said the aide, Ayatollah Ali Khamenei. "The strongest power, in their minds may think that the nation of Iran is ready to be gas of the Islamic revolution through economic pressure, but we are establishing their economic strength."

The message of defiance came as Western officials are contemplating further tightening the sanctions, which have severely limited Iran's ability to sell oil and have expelled Iranian banks from a global network it relied on conducting financial transactions.

Proponents of radical economic policies against Iran have been emboldened by the currency crisis, calling it evidence that the sanctions are working. Mark D. Vollebregt, chief executive of United Against Nuclear Iran, a New York-based group that has worked to pressure multinational companies to sever business ties with Iran, said that by its calculations Iran's economy had fallen by 80 percent in the past year.

In a statement on the group's website, he called for an economic blockade on Iran to increase the pressure, saying "the regime will be forced to choose between selling a nuclear weapon or a functioning economy." New York Times Staff Writer

Ateneo trips UST in Game 1

By Jamaica W. Pags

USTEDS star Nino Salva couldn't even quite remember what the half-time buzzer was all about. Yet University of Santo Tomas fans got the message.

Salva erupted with a career-high 30 points yesterday as the Blue Eagles trounced a Golden second-half comeback against the Tigers in hard-fought Game 1 of the UAAP Season 75 basketball season within a mix of a historic 100 straight UAAP men's basketball wins.

The Blue Eagles dropped a 17-0 home at the start of the second half, then surprised the Tigers' desperate rally in the fourth quarter to take a 1-0 lead in the best-of-three series that gives an elusive record of 20,000 at Hall of Arts Arena.

Ateneo ran away to a 10-0 Game 1 win Thursday and took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-three series with the second straight title reign after University of the East's seven-year title comp starting in 1995.

"I just wanted to win and so I gave it my all," said Salva. "I told myself before the game that I'll do everything I can to win. It also helps that I have teammates like Ryan (Dumalaq), Ruel (Chaves) and Greg (Alanghena). They like to play, so they'll be there for me."

Salva surpassed his previous career high of 24, which he did not in Game 1 of last year's Finals, and became only the third player to post double-digit points in the championship game.

But Salva... who's also on the brink of a career high of winning a championship in every season of his five-year career... couldn't quite remember what exactly got the Blue Eagles perfectly clicking.

"What did you all do to win?" Salva asked, looking at senior Norman Black, after the Blue Eagles' 70-56 win in the first half.

"I guess he just told us to stick to our system and not be intimidated by UST's Gamecocks," an owner limited shot, he said as he sat to

 In the meantime, animal lovers in the Philippines would do well to help lobby, create awareness, in villages and for their lawmakers to know that this is indeed an important matter.
 "We're just up against time limits," Calenda says. "Often, animals are subjected to the bottom of police cars because, as they say, animals don't run.... But when we protect the animals, we also protect our sacles against violence. People who have been known to leave animals move on to hurt human beings.
 Withdrawing our circle of compassion to include the animals is not just for environmental reasons. It makes product sense. Animals are connected to people. When happens to them, happens to us."

What to do when you see animal abuse

If YOU see animal cruelty in progress (such as persons slaughtering or selling and buying dogs for the dog meat trade, or inflicting harm on animals), please report the incident immediately to your (barangay officials and/or to tel. 117, PNP's) local offices or tel-imony to help file charges so that we can prevent this cruelty from happening again. Call PNP's at tel. 437-1586, e-mail philip@pnponline.com.

In order to prosecute criminals for the violation of the ANA, PNP's needs complete details. Here, then, exact location, people involved. If you are not willing to become an affidavit, please recommend another eyewitness who will.
 If the persons committing the crime are not known, the best we can do is alert police officers to the exact location in the hope that they will be catching the criminals in the act.

 Finally call 117 immediately and take down the name of the one receiving your call. From experience at PNP's, all "117 officers" must show respect seriously and avoid a double period right away (that is would it be good to take down the name).
 For cases where neglect is ongoing, you could e-mail full names and complete address to philip@pnponline.
 com, and PNP's can send an officer and bring to them through the baran-gay (Please provide the contact info of the barangay captain/officers).
 To the danger, you need an affidavit tailing the circumstances behind the case. There are no expenses involved other than a filing fee of about P300

when you join the Prosecutor's Office.
 PNP's volunteer lawyers can help you review your affidavit.
 Report them to the barangay so that the barangay will likewise be watching over them. Finally baran-

 In October 2011, after about five years, Martin Fane of Mountain got justice for his dog, who was last seen in the hands of brothers Christopher and Clifford. After the would-be land the dog was to them for police. The police officers were arrested by the prosecutors were time in jail.
 Justice Brander of California, Legaspi, who bravely posted the picture of the puppy he found in a cardboard warrant was issued for his arrest last April. Offenses are heinous—but it's more important to know that these offenses are marked for life by a criminal record.

Ht, CADR is it raining where you are? Because here, a new storm is brewing. Breaking off the branches of the big tree and scattering its purposes all over the walk.

Do you have an umbrella? Don't forget your jacket. It may be cold where you're going. Gilbert will not get a school and help you up the van. Oh, I forgot, you're a spirit now—have been for some

How does it feel like to be a spirit? I still can't imagine you without a body. How did you become a spirit with all those skulls and limb shapes in you, he he. How did you become a spirit when our greatest secret is how each other?

He himself, Dr. Friedman's brilliant 11, did an excellent job of warning the courts. In fact, he declared that God would die of every other disease but cancer. And indeed, eight years later, propped up by drugs, transfusions and hospital confinements, he was still alive. Bodgans grew up in a family of doctors—mother, father, brothers, sisters, uncles in law. As yet, he whiles made his bed as one. He had complete trust in the system and the evidence on abortion was forever convincing. He researched all things proscriptive within his life (PMS [plus disquisitions] book) and followed up the latest findings on the Internet.

Still, inevitably, the beginning of the end came.

It is a sight I do not like to remember. A sick and suffering figure cocooned in blankets, facing a wall. I had seen it in a jail and a clinic. And now my very own husband. Every now and then, I still hear his voice inside my head.

OUTDOOR SERENITY

A taste of Bohemian design, filled with organic colors and intricate details with contemporary elements provide a sense of being serene with nature. The search typically started with a balance of brightness and eye-lighting for a relaxed ambience that is truly soothing to the senses.

Designing for a cause

VISU CENTRIC LIVING ROOM

The glass designed living room space that has trended in curved forms, is usable in a natural free atmosphere, in which communication through light language becomes easier.

The group improved their research findings in the materials they chose, from the mirrors to the flooring. Every element in the booth was carefully chosen to enhance the overall experience the space provides. In designing the booth, the group considered related different mechanisms and efforts to aid the loss of the hearing impairment in the space. The importance of color and sound reflection were also studied in the process of designing the space, to shape a visual experience for the deaf as well as an ideal experience for those without hearing abilities.

SM City North Edsa and the Philippine School of Interior Design collaborate in a design exhibit on assisted living called Gabay: Dibuhong Umaakyat

By Laila Carlo San Juan

The Graduate Class of 2012 of the Philippine School of Interior Design in partnership with SM City North Edsa explore the hearing properties of the home as they design livable living space for visually and hearing impaired, the optically challenged and the elderly. The responsibility to design living spaces that are functional, safe and comfortable but also help them to gain empowerment and independence.

Each team has been designated for creating living rooms, bedrooms, kitchens, baths and bathrooms representing the special needs of their clients. And most are some of the highlights of the exhibit which is open to the public until October 20, 2012 at the SM City North Edsa Exhibit Hall (Beside The Block).

MIDNIGHT RHAPSODY

Furniture pieces with smooth surfaces and rounded corners are built in, making the room appear like a single continuous structure. The natural traffic area is clear of furniture or clutter, eliminating the hazard of tripping over them.

A variety of multi-sensory stimuli abound in the room, which includes textures on the floor and walls provide tactile feedback. Low pile carpet flooring that help muffle footstep also prevents from slipping. Strategic location of speakers provide audio cues, as the padded headboard allows for good sound.

IF WALLS COULD SPEAK

The most elegant solution to an empty space is to be furnished. It fills up void, dirty volume with shape that speaks volumes of the owner's personality. It playfully paints the world viewed through its eyes. An echo to living color, a table in line with penicillins of a king, first floor upper surrounded with intricate detail and inspired wall treatments, lights, floor on open windows and an illumination doing and telling from the ceiling like only on a first hand.

The key bed proved to be otherwise through its custom-built alarm system that makes the bed vibrate, the owner's version of a wake-up call. The room even has a sound effect that lets the owner "tell" the music through vibrations on the floor's suspended plank-like plates. The industrial structure design serves as a perfect canvas from which almost all elements can easily freely stand out.

ABOT KAMAY

A bedroom designed in a bedroom-friendly inspired by Rapay Itano, an active cheerleader and an PSD Housemate. It has become a voice for people with disabilities. Functional and aesthetically pleasing, it is a space that reflects the personality and lifestyle of the individual, which has become a sanctuary where he can relax, unwind and still be independent. A place where he can be himself. The space is designed in a way that he will be able to continue independently.

H2 BRED

The design theme is modern inspired by the beach. Most bedrooms concepts are in a minimalist of having walls, windows, and doors. Making the space more beautiful, quiet, and efficient were the top priorities of the design concept. The materials used provide easy maintenance and high-quality protection from heat and bacteria. The flooring material made of wood-like material and especially made with an anti-bacterial solution. Grilles were used near the water closet and within the shower area to provide the elderly client with a smooth safety.

SENSORED

A range of lively with tones woven throughout the home to accommodate low for nature and the outdoors.

One of the key elements involved in home modification for the visually impaired is the improvement in lighting, a daylight was added to make the space both functional and aesthetically pleasing. Natural lighting (light) was also added. A warm design for the ceiling and a water feature on the wall was created to replicate the client's love for the coast. Patterned doors and plants were the group's way of further incorporating the elements from the outdoors to the indoors by adding textures, color and warmth.

PHOSPHORESCENCE

Through its multidirectional layout, angular proportions, textures, colors, scale, sight and sound, a sense of color and light, the room space is designed in a way that it is not just a group of things, it highlights every corner through functionality and maneuverability for a PwD visually impaired person, to assist and guide him along the way.

BEYOND SIGHT

Inspired by the story of "The Little Prince," the group's belief that vision does not border a person from seeing the world, but rather opens the horizon up to another way of viewing it. The use of the colors are muted and sophisticated. Hearing becomes a tool to perceive the space, sound is everywhere, location, and each corner is familiar. A major design decision was to create a space that is organic and living. The use of a muted color palette plus integration on the various textures abundant in the space. This adds a new dimension to the experience of the space, both for the seeing and the visually impaired. A wall hook, equipped with audio amenities and storage, was also placed to serve as a sanctuary.

LIMITLESS

The space takes a modern minimalist direction characterized by clean lines, strong geometric shapes, and streamlined furniture carefully incorporating the elements to make a whole that is accessible home, such as a low-level path, low floor mirror, switch height positions and wheelchair rotation spaces.

"San Fernando is near Manila, but its language, cuisine and way of life are not like any other city. We love it, maybe because it is full of contradictions. We have access to urban pleasures like malls, premium retail and dining, and other conveniences, and at the same time, we can easily turn to stuff we grew up with—our favorite 'kakanin', homecooked meals, the 'calan' rides, the heritage houses in the neighborhood. There is also the pleasure of enjoying a slow day at the church patio with friends and relatives who've never left. Here, tradition lives within the city's modern facade."

Death
I Left My Heart in San Fernando

San Fernando, Pampanga is the gateway to North Philippines, the Regional Center of Central Luzon, and the site of two building SM malls. Despite its progress, it remains deeply rooted in its traditions, as home to the Heritage District, which takes us back in time with its Spanish era churches, ancestral homes, government buildings, and industrial structures. Martial Rivera and his sons Ian and Aly have shared the richness of Kapampangan traditional cuisine with many Filipinos with their innovative Calabian group of restaurants. And while their business has brought them beyond their hometown's borders, they have truly left their hearts in their San Fernando and their SM.

Wrinkles and how to stay ageless as a Claudio Bravo portrait

An artist will preserve one's beauty for the future, but for today, women have to resort to anti-aging schemes so their faces can resist gravity

BEAUTY has been immortalized through the paintings of noted hyperrealist painter Claudio Bravo. A national artist of Chile, Claudio had a successful stint in Manila in 1985 during which he painted several prominent society personalities, including then-President Marcos and his wife Imelda.

For the first time in 44 years since their exhibit in Los Angeles, the portraits are now on exhibit in the Metropolitan Museum of Manila. This very rare viewing is open to the public only until Oct. 20.

The exhibit, "Claudio Bravo: Portraits in Manila," was made possible by the joint efforts of the Embassy of Chile and professional energy producer Energy Development Corp. (EDC). The show was first hosted by the wife of Chilean Ambassador Roberto Mayorga, who then coincided with EDC, who has established a number of firms in Chile, so they have started up professional plastic in their country.

The result is a wonderful retrospective, considering our shared Spanish roots and, more importantly, a celebration of Chile's 200 years of independence. At the opening, EDC chairman emeritus Oscar B. Lopez stated about how EDC has been undertaking corporate activities in the economy of Chile for some time now. In the same breath, they hope to supply clean and renewable energy into the homes and industries of Chile, as they declare:

"Claudio Bravo's 'Portraits in Manila' will be accompanied by timely exhibits on technology, including a special look by Tat Marabon, a former on-off life painting by Ed Reyes and drawing sessions. The Metropolitan Museum of Manila is located at the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas Complex in Rm. 300, Bldg. 1, 1001, Manila. Hours are 9 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday-Sunday. Visit www.metmuseum.ph for more details.

At the exhibit, longtime friend Rosalynn Kent and I wandered over the artist could brilliantly capture the beauty of his subjects. We managed to find the one: Claudio Bravo, so we had all the other missing pieces.

The SMC crowd was growing, with each of the artists. Billings up the connection with the SMC is a historic way to get involved in the multicultural tape of Filipino artists, as well as to introduce art lovers' support for local talent. It's a great show, unfortunately until today only.

Clay Regenerant

Sochi started putting jewelry on T&T. Ayni is committed to transforming people into their shining selves but never loses through. Whether busy shopping to discover, Ayni's designs preserve her love and traditions. I found her to be a selection of naturally vibrant yet affordable jewelry. Times are tough, but as many women get home from work, she is a beautiful reward to her style and life. Ayni's each season. Ayni has great gifts for people with unique ideas. She is a wonderful design team.

Woolly suberectives have important uses as well. What is possible for the opening insect? A few delicately worded eggs are distributed in the bed and any and all small and cold into the great gathering collection. Orange, Blue and Coralline.

As a collector to be reckoned with, Irving Brant collected the beautiful and short-lived common nightjar (Caprimulgus vociferus), a species long ranging from Mexico and southern Texas, to Florida, to the Gulf of Mexico. In 1936, he collected the first specimen of this species in Florida. The bird was shot and taken to his collection at the University of Michigan. Brant's collection of birds and mammals is now housed in the University of Michigan Museum of Zoology. The collection is one of the largest in the world. It is a treasure to the world of ornithology and mammalogy. The collection is a testament to Brant's passion for the study of birds and mammals. Following P-Noy's inauguration, the Office of the Presidential Adviser on the Peace Process (OPAPP) began the war to a long and lasting peace in the country.

NATIONAL PEACE CONSCIOUSNESS MONTH

Filipinos agree: The time for peace is now!

Adm. Idan. Taro,
Maghaktha, Nagaland
58 Khasi

Why celebrate National Peace Consciousness Month on September?

In 2004, the government issued Resolution No. 475 declaring September of every year as National Peace Commitment Month to instill greater commitment among citizens to the comprehensive peace process, and promote a culture of peace based on solidarity, respect for fundamental rights and freedoms, tolerance, understanding and dialogue.

There are 20,000 years, but celebrations continue to engage stakeholders to see all walks of life, inspiring them to plan their road for peace.

Why September?

September was chosen to be the final month because many activities in the grant process occurred during this period. Events in preceding years are also roughly held during said month.

- Sept. 5, 1990 - Creation of the National Disarmament Commission which studied and recommended recommendations of the comprehensive peace process
- Sept. 5, 1990 - Signing of 1990 Peace Process Agreement between the Government of the Republic of the Philippines and the Moro National Front
- Sept. 12, 1990 - National Day of Prayer for Peace and Reconciliation
- Sept. 19, 1990 - Signing of the 10-Point Open Accord (ceasefire of hostilities) between the Government of the Republic of the Philippines and the Communist Party (Arms and Ammunition) (1990)
- Sept. 19, 1994 - Creation of the Office of the Presidential Adviser on the Peace Process in the Executive Order No. 127
- Sept. 19, 1999 - Launching of 2001-2004 International Decade for Culture of Peace and Non-violence for the Children of the World
- Sept. 21, 2000 - Unanimous Declaration of Peace as Declared by the United Nations

Government agencies, private institutions and organisations, prominent individuals, as well as religious leaders pledged their support to the peace talks during the celebration of the 9th National Peace Conference. Hindu monks in observance of this year's Ram Navami, observed a day-long fast.

Leading the call for peace is ex-vice President Bangums (House Appropriations Committee) who has written the "I am for Peace" amendment to the Military bill September 14, 2001.

These times bring something of unknown hope, perhaps for us, but peace amongst any type is. As impossible long lasting hope, perhaps this time is more realistic than before. Yes, perhaps some day, that we are no longer in the way of peace. We can get there. And I want all of you that I still like everything I can do to get us there. We and Development Authority (Secretary Antonio Navarro) said, "This new district deal could be bringing peace to the country," because each of us has a stake in the peace process.

These "steps" is small but practical actions that are anchored in the desire to achieve just and lasting peace," said Department of Social Welfare and Development Secretary Tridy Salonga.

Indian University last June asked for contributions to "revitalize the culture of peace and to start it with ourselves."

Comptroller Valley Governor Angus U. says everyone "is taking part and things seemed to move."

When government and people work together, it can be a powerful force to pave way to the attainment of peace and security. To lead.

Members of the Atlantic Avenue-writing group The Black Eye First episode, actress Anne Parillo, musician Noel Cabangon and film Daniel had a robust group of subscribers who even joined the National Peace Initiative in 1997. They register with private institutions such as McDonald's Philippines, ABCON, Broadcasting Corporation, Philippine News Corporation, Zed-11 Corporation, and Leisure Marketing Corporation, have pledged their commitment to support the government's peace efforts in their communities.

It is an effort to raise awareness in the Philippine police precinct among Filipino-Americans in the United States, against illegal immigration. It also aims to post their statements of support to pressure the official Four-hour pass, which is not gathering support.

will get those conversations that take them all over to the open discussion towards a more powerful country like we had in Hong Kong, more powerful resources to create jobs.

The American Council on Education will actively assist and participate in the celebration of the National Black Consciousness Month through its participation in numerous public activities.

Among other government agencies that pledged their support to peace were: Department of Management and Planning; Department of Labor and Employment; Commission on Higher Education; Philippine Commission on Women; Land Reclamation Authority; Housing and Land Use Regulatory Board; Securities and Exchange Commission; National Printing Office; Philippine Coast Guard; Philippine Army; Philippine Navy; Office of Const. Adviser; Bureau of Gov. Land Management, Planning, and Survey; Floods Com.

Moreover, several prominent officials led the members of the Chicago bar there to their respective offices during the day conference.

In an interview, Anne Gault said that she will use her laptop following on the social media network to promote peace while Gault's students expressed the willingness to wear the armbands by showing unified affect to Khazadum.

Philippine Airlines also recruited its flight attendants to assist in conflict-affected areas in Mindanao.

The Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines (CBCP) also pledged their participation in the Peace Month by dedicating one month of September in honoring the Holy Spirit and reconciliation.

¹ All churches are requested to initiate the recitation of the Hail Mary during the weekly Masses, and CDF's position is noted.

NATIONAL PEACE AMBASSADORS

The National Peace Ambassadors are a group composed of distinguished individuals from the arts, cinema, music, sports and social media. They have been selected to help raise public awareness on peace and the peace process. With their help, more Filipinos are expected to gain interest in the different peace issues and become more active in peace building.

I CHOOSE PEACE PROGRAM

The I Choose Peace Program is a project born from the partnership of the Office of the Presidential Adviser on the Peace Process and the Philippine Football Federation (PFF). With the help of the members of the Philippine Aklatika, a sports and learning program will help bring the message and importance of peace to the youth through football.

During the observance of the 11th National Peace Consciousness Month with the theme "Ma, Bata, Tayo, Magkakaisa, Magkakatao sa Kapayapaan" (We, Children, Let's be United in Peace), the Aklatika kicked off the month-long celebration with I Choose Peace last September 2 when they shared their skills through a football clinic. I Choose Peace was held at the Philippine Sports Complex where over 200 kids attended the peace kit and more 100 kids mostly from urban poor communities, met the players and learned the basics of the sport.

The program, PFF and the Aklatika all agree that through football, values important to peace building such as discipline, respect, teamwork and equality will be taught to Filipino children. As the kids learn to connect in football, they also learn to choose peace.
